Microvolts Community Events and Special Weekends

One thing that can help keep MMOs alive and thriving are special community events and weekends that offer players a way to gain extra items or experience or participate in a fun social activity. Microvolts online is known for having a wide variety of community event frequently. For example, they recently featured the “Zombie Long Weekend”, a three day long event in which players could work together to kill in-game zombies. The more zombies a player killed, the more rewards they received. Special events like these offer new ways to play the game.

Microvolts - The Seven Different Weapons Types

In the MMO Microvolts, there are seven different weapons types. The great thing about these weapons is that they can be used by any character class, so there are no limitations. The different types of weapons that can be used include Melee weapons, Rifles, Shotguns, Sniper Rifles, Gatling Guns, Bazookas, and Grenade Launchers. Players start off with one weapon of each type, and they can get more effective and powerful weapons as they level up, purchasing them through the in-game stores.

Enjoy Variety with Six Different Gaming Modes

Variety is what helps keep an MMO thriving, and Microvolts delivers with its six different types of gameplay. These gaming modes include Team Death Match, Free for All, Item Match, Capture the Battery, Close Combat, and Elimination. The game modes include a good balance of individual gameplay as well as social and team based gameplay, allowing those with different interests to enjoy the game. Microvolts even features nine unique maps to play in, each with a specific theme, layout, and size.

Make Friends and Compete in Microvolts

The social aspect of an MMO is one of the important features. The Microvolts game offers players many different ways to interact with friends and other games. One of the main points of the game will interest competitive gamers, as there are many ways to compete against other players for rewards and experience. However, social gamers are not left out. Players can mingle in the Club House area to chat and access community features. Microvolts is also planning to have a clan system in place sometime soon, allowing people to be a part of a permanent group.
